

2022 Rosenfield Program Internships

- Wanting to pursue work in social change, Hyein Cho '23 got relevant experience in research while working as an intern at the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission-Chicago District. The EEOC is the U.S. agency that administers, interprets, and enforces laws prohibiting employment discrimination.
- Evelynn Coffie '24 did a virtual internship with Iowa Black History Research Collective. Along with working on social media accounts for the organization, Evelyn built profiles for Des Moines' ten oldest black churches.
- Elia Dewey '23 interned at Breakthrough Collaborative in Minneapolis as a student mentor. This organization works to create educational experiences for traditionally underrepresented students.
- Xonzy Gaddis '23 did legal research and compiled legal documents as well as court observation during her internship at Micah Legal in Fayette County (Lexington, Kentucky).
- Delivering food to community partners was just one of the many things that Ella Hennager '23 did at her Grinnell Local Foods Connection internship this summer. She also did social media and promoted food justice issues.
- Abby Lynch '24 has a passion for helping others. This summer she did video editing and social media work at Fun 4 the Disabled.
- Emma Mills' '23 skills in photography, videography, and writing were invaluable during her internship at Amideast Tunisia, a leading American nonprofit organization engaged in international education in the Middle East and North Africa.
- El Pozo de Vida is an NGO that fights against human trafficking in Mexico and Central America. Margaret Morey's '25 internship in Mexico City primarily involved intervention and restoration projects.
- As an intern at Amideast Tunisia, Kayley Ronkvist '23 planned, led, and promoted events that fostered strong US-Tunisia relations and cross-cultural education and understandings.
- Phillip Tyne '24 interned at United Action for Youth in Iowa City supporting youth to pave the way for a healthy future.
